

FedACH® Settlement Advice Clarification/Reminder

With the implementation of Same Day ACH, you may receive additional settlement advices at various times throughout the day. As communicated through our FAQ document, each time an advice is created, it reflects the dollars settling at that given settlement window.

Specifically, the first advice created for the day will reflect both return and forward settlement that will be available at 1:00 p.m. ET; the second advice will reflect the settlement for forward and return entries available at 5:00 p.m. ET; the third advice will reflect forward and return entries settling at 6:00 p.m. ET; and the end-of-day advice will reflect those entries settling one or more days in the future that will post at 8:30 a.m. ET on the settlement date.

To add further clarification around these new settlement advices, it is important to note that your FedACH output files may not necessarily balance to your advices. FedACH will distribute items available for any given delivery regardless of the associated settlement time. As a result, you may need to use information from multiple advices to balance to the output files you receive. FedACH advices will, however, always balance to the information posted in the Account Management Information (AMI) application.

Below are two tools available to assist you in balancing. Should you have questions, please contact FedACH and Check Services Customer Support at (877) 372-2457.

The Financial Services logo and "FedACH" are registered service marks of the Federal Reserve Banks. A list of marks related to financial services products offered to financial institutions by the Federal Reserve Banks is available at FRBservices.org.

1) Settlement Advices. Institutions have the ability to receive advices. This setup is based on the current customer information in our database.

Advices will be produced prior to each settlement window (1:00PM ET, 5:00PM ET, 5:30PM ET, 8:30AM ET). The 8:30AM ET settlement advice will contain future dated entries. All other advices will contain forward and return entries that settle the same day. The same File IDs may appear on more than one advice, but the amounts listed reflect settlement for that particular settlement window.

Note: Advices will not be cumulative; therefore, more than one advice may be needed to balance the Fed Accounting Statement.
